

Arguments Heard in Hawaiian Schools Case

Nov. 5, 2004

Several hundred students from the Kamehameha Schools demonstrated early Thursday outside the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Honolulu, where a panel of Ninth Circuit judges was hearing oral arguments on the school's preferential admissions policy. The sign held by the students at left refers to Princess Bernice Pauahi Bishop, who set up the trust which funds Kamehameha Schools. Click here for a Honolulu Advertiser article and here for a Honolulu Star-Bulletin story about the proceeding.

Photos courtesy U.S. Bankruptcy Court

